

MRS MARTIN'S JOTTINGS

SOAR

TAKE YOUR TIME

Mara

Plot Point 1
Frustration Time

0:34 - 0:56

Lukas He She They

Model planes

Frustrated Fed up down despairing glum tired weary sullen
giving up out of ideas

Wind blows plans.
She sighs.
Puts her head in her hands - glum.
A tiny suitcase/flight bag lands on her table.

QUALITY IS BETTER THAN QUANTITY

Our 3 challenges:

A colon to introduce a list

oops, I drew a semi-colon. A colon is like this :

Alliteration

wind/whistled will wiggled went wafted wandered wondrous weird whipped

A Complex sentence 'as'

Frustrated, dejected, glum, Mara slumped over her work bench and sighed. As if to join in with the sigh, a mischievous wind whistled and ~~ruffled~~ ^{whipped} Mara's useless plans.

She held the planning sheet flat, resisting the wind's power, her brain working furiously to try to ^{ascertain} ^{work out} ^{discover} ^{find} ^{decide} what had gone wrong.

It was no good. All her plans failed, failed miserably, failed catastrophically. Grumpily, she pushed the planning paper away from her; it wafted on to the grass ~~ben~~ behind the table. Suddenly, something dropped from the sky. What was it? A miniature object landed on the table: blue, with white straps and handles - it was a sturdy but tiny flight case. What could be inside?

9 sentences.
Re-read