Actions and Feeling:

Shocked and amazed, I rubbed my eyes. Confidently, the larger (and I assume older) lizards shuffled to the edge of the rock face, facing out scrutinising the sea.

Checking and Onomatopoeia:

The waves crashed, gushed and splashed! They pummeled, smashed and attacked. Surely this was a suicidal mission.

Imagining:

With grace and certainty, the brave animals plunged into the sea, continuing to dive deeper until they were out of my sight. How would these warm-blooded animals survive in the cold depths of the Pacific Ocean?
